

ENSIE’s amendments application on GBER

March 2026

Following the recommendations of ENSIE’s feedback on Revision of the General Block Exemption Regulation \(EU\) No 651/2014, the European Commission publicised a new legislation for the General Block Exemption Regulation (GBER).

As the European Network of Work Integration Social Enterprises (WISEs) ENSIE represents enterprises that combine economic activity with social impact, creating employment opportunities for vulnerable individuals. In particular, WISEs have been recognized explicitly in the COUNCIL RECOMMENDATION of 27 November 2023 on developing social economy framework conditions as a type of social enterprise that focuses on helping those groups of people integrate in society and in work by providing jobs at various skills levels with inclusive and flexible working conditions.

These enterprises, which are most often small and medium enterprises, can benefit from specific articles of the regulation.

ENSIE welcomes the application of its amendments in the draft of the new legislation of GBER, that aimed at reinforcing the importance of social economy in general, and social enterprises in particular.

While ENSIE's demands have been almost entirely satisfied, some details remaining relevant for the prosperity of social enterprises are missing.

Indeed, in the article 2, the definitions, while the definition of disadvantage worker has been enlarged, there is no mention of family reunification or domestic violence leading to be disadvantage on the labour market.

In the article 32/45 about "aid for the recruitment of disadvantaged workers in the form of wage subsidies", ENSIE recommended to "introduce flexibility for higher aid intensity in the case of severely disadvantaged workers in social economy enterprises. This would allow for up to 75% of the eligible costs for severely disadvantaged workers in social economy enterprises." However, while the aid maximum grew from 50% to 65% (The aid intensity shall not exceed 65 % of the eligible costs.), it still is far away from the 75% from the recommendation.

In the article 47/65 about "investment aid for resource efficiency and for supporting the transition towards a circular economy", There isn't any mention of Reuse Aid.
